

The Saranese Culture

A New Year, A New Direction

I celebrated New Year's 2010 in Kenya with my parents, having used my dad's sky miles to obtain a very inexpensive flight. During my time in Kenya, I am wrapping up 2009 projects and paperwork, planning for 2010, and taking advantage of the time I have to do life coaching with my father. As a result, I feel refreshed, awakened, energized and excited about the year ahead! With a new year comes a new direction, for both me personally, as well as TSC. After intensive soul searching, crying out to God, meetings with advisors and discussions with my board, I have decided to take time off from some of the ministry side of TSC. I will use that time to complete my Life Coaching certification (specializing in Destiny and Discipleship Coaching), spend time in language study, and dedicate time to writing my next book. I have also applied to Youth With A Mission's (YWAM) Discipleship Training School (DTS). As a missionary furthering my intellectual and spiritual education, I look forward to being refreshed and better prepared to continue following the dreams God has given me to IMPACT the nations! I am excited beyond words for this new phase in my life and ask for your prayers as I continue seeking God's will for this year! Thank you for your support in the past, present and future!

Some people argue that 'people need to make their own mistakes', but who has time to make all the mistakes themselves?

Wouldn't you rather be enjoying life?

That's what this book will help you do.
